Introduction

Script Kill is emerging as a new type of tabletop game that is gaining wide popularity among young people. Players solve the puzzles in the script mainly through role-playing, and there are both offline and online channels. In mainland China, this tabletop game format has become very mature, while in Hong Kong, the offline scripted kill store, a game format, is still in the early stages of development. With mainland students returning to Hong Kong for face-to-face instruction, it has revived the scripted kill market in Hong Kong and has placed a higher demand on Hong Kong scripted kill stores.

At present, there is no very comprehensive information channel, players are difficult to directly access information about scripted kill stores, often need to use Red, WeChat, instagrm and other social media platforms to find merchant information, the cycle is long, sometimes it takes a day to get in touch with merchants effectively. The merchant's publicity channels are also not targeted. When publishing relevant content in Red, it is impossible to find users in a targeted manner; it is difficult to discover new potential customers when promoting in WeChat's circle of friends. The merchant's information update is also not timely, due to the constraints of the venue factors, the script kill store time need to be booked in advance, currently only through WeChat, telephone and other ways to get in touch with the merchant, once there is new venue information, can not be the first time to notify players, the intermediate information transfer takes a lot of time.

Therefore, I would like to create a script killing information sharing website, where players can visually see the script killing stores located in Hong Kong, and learn about the content of the scripts included in the stores and venue reservation information, etc. Merchants can also update their store information on the website instantly and get in touch with players. This will help build a more efficient and harmonious environment for the script killing market in Hong Kong.

Questions:

- 1. On what platform do you usually get the store information of script killing?
- 2. What metrics do you focus on when learning about stores?
- 3. What platforms did you use to get information about scripted stores before? (Show the app interface)
- 4. Can you show me your process of finding scriptkill stores on this platform?
- 5. How did you get in touch with the script killer store?
- 6. How do you book a game of scriptkill?
- 7. What do you do if you find that there are not enough people for a scripted kill?
- 8. Do you think the information on the platform is comprehensive?
- 9. Do you think the platform can cover all your requirements?
- 10. Do you think the platform needs to be improved in any way?
- 11. Do you think anything else needs to be added?
- 12. Do you think the existing channels can help you book a scripted kill successfully?
- 13. If such a platform existed, would you be willing to use it?

Reason:

The script kill activity is quite popular among younger generation, especially students, for they enjoy taking part in those social activities to make more friends and have fun. What's more, the plots in script kill games can really attract the young, such as suspense stories and emotional scripts. However, for a student who is willing to play the game, it will really cost a lot of time finding the places and uniting a group of people, so here comes the pain points. Everyone had problems on arranging a game and finding all the members, which bring them some troubles. However, a platform which provided this kind of information can improve the efficiency.

Problem statement

How might we help a socially active students to address the problem of finding and reserving the most appropriate script kill rooms to achieve the goal of having an efficient script kill activity?
